DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

FOR SHERIFF,
JAMES P. STEVENS,
FOR CIRCUIT COURT CLERK,
GABRIEL B. LIKENS.

For our people are as helpless before the present Legislature on the question of our Circuit Courts, as they are upon the question of better public roads, they would as well not attempt to secure any change.

The man who says he does not like politics would better move out until after November. A President, a Congressman and a county ticket to a elect, leaves no doubt about these being essentially political times this year. And the more the better.

For an attempted outrage upon the person of Miss Lydia Starr, who will be remembered as the beautiful Paducah girl who some weeks ago visited Mrs. C. L. Field, of this place, Charles Hill, a negro, was taken from the jail there Thursday night by a mob and hanged to a convenient tree.

The HERALD would be glad to have the news of each neighborhood in the county sent in by some lively, reliable correspondent. Short news letters from each locality are the best features of the county paper. No letter will be published which is not signed in the name of the writer, but in no case is the writer's name used except when so directed. Send us the news and send your letters so as to reach us by Sunday or Monday of each week.

The suggestion from Grazia this week concerning our next Congressman meets a warm response from every Ohio county voter, as many of many voters throughout the entire District. Dr. Pendleton is a gentleman of extended learning, brilliant, scholarly and aggressive. He is a Democrat and a representative Kentucky gentleman. If he wants to honor the Fourth District in Congress, he may count an army of friends who will gladly come to his support.

EVERWHERE in this issue will be seen some correspondence giving facts, &c., relative to the improvement of Rough River which will be of interest to every citizen of the county. Nothing could be more desirable or could more effectively add to the county's prosperity than the opening of this stream to slack-water navigation. We hope there may be no flagging of the interest in this matter and that the really navigation of this stream may soon be secured to our people.

THESE are those among us who are trying to advocate the ownership of the railroads by the Government, when the Government—or the people which is the same thing—does not pretend to keep in any kind of order the only means of transportation which comes home to each one of us. With the people's property, the public roads, so had to be all but worthless, is it not immature to talk of the time when we may keep in such miserable repair? If the people owned the railroads, how long would it be until they became impossible through neglect? Let the public roads be improved before we are given much talk about Government ownership of railroads.

HOW often must live too long. Solomon lived through an age of unexampled wisdom and greatness to be the pitiful victim of his own discretion. He was a wise George III, lived through a life of vigor, activity and pride to become the pitiful "poor old man." Had Benedict Arnold been slain in honorable battle while he was yet the trusted Lieutenant and gallant soldier, America would mourn one traitor less; and if a king's Providence had snatched the span of life allotted to James G. Blaine, he betrayed his chief and thus recorded the most revolting piece of treachery known to modern history, he might have carried to an honorable grave the respect and confidence of a nation whose political life he has done much to honor. In sorrow and even in pity the world beholds again the wreath of a once proud man who has had the misfortune to live too long. We pray to be delivered from a life that leads us into times for which we are unfit.

BON FOON, who some years ago bravely and unmercifully murdered his friend and companion in crime, James Jesse, was himself perforated with a load of buckshot and instantly killed without warning at Greeley, Colorado, last week. James was a desperate man and the country was glad to be rid of him, but the manner of his taking off was not to the liking of decent men, none of whom are sorry when it is announced that his slayer too has been "removed."

QUERY: If 25,000 people own and control 300 miles of road which they permit to be impassable eight months in the year, what would result if the ownership of 200,000 miles of road, requiring the continuous labor of 750,000 men, most of whom skillfully, to keep the road in running order, were given into the hands of the same custodians? The condition of Ohio county's highways would forever put to silence the suggestion of the "people" owning the railroads.

The McLean County Star is the title of a splendid newspaper, the first number of which has just reached us from Calhoun. Mr. George Swain, the editor, is well known in the circles of local journalism, and will give to the McLean county people what they have long needed—a live, reliable newspaper. Brother Swain should know the cause however, that there is no "harming from posterity," so far as the career of a Kentuckian or a Kentucky newspaper is concerned. Good merchants.

There are a few one-horse merchants in Ohio county, and the few that still remain, are scarcely known to anybody. Their name never appears in the HERALD and they are hardly found out until it is written over their place "by the sheriff"! It is finished! The men who are doing the business are the men who advertise and in dealing with them the people reach the real business elements of the community.

OUR CIRCUIT COURT TIME. In the shake-up which will necessarily occur in changing from two to three terms per year of Circuit Court, let us see to it that the time of holding court in Ohio county is changed from the present most objectionable season to a time when it will not entail such inconvenience and loss upon our farmers. It is not a time to be found at which all men will have leisure to attend court, but at which they are so very busy as during the months of May and June.

Ohio county has conceded much to the other counties of the district where she has heretofore been, having for many years the inconvenience and loss of a term of court at this season, but she will make a stubborn fight against bearing the burden which she thinks ought now to shift to some one else.

Another objection to the terms being held at this time is the fact that it is in conflict with the annual Commencement exercises of Hartford College, which form the leading social event of the year here and for that reason the townspeople think the time ought to be changed.

Our people should keep their eye on the work of the legislature when the matter is being decided and use to it that our wishes in this matter are wholly ignored as they are about other matters concerning which we appeal to that respectable body of white men or self-respecting negro in Kentucky.

THE MAN WITH THE WORST POLITICS on earth is the man with no politics at all. By which we mean that he who cannot or does not choose between the well-defined doctrines of government now held out by the contending parties, is either criminally ignorant or he reserves his choice hoping to be "influenced" by personal relatives. It is not every person who is an ignoramus to the prejudices of our country, but the majority of us are about other matters concerning which we appeal to that respectable body.

THE BATTLE IS OPEN. The battle is now being waged throughout the country by Gabriel B. Likens and James P. Stevens to the voters of Ohio county, the Democracy inveigling the enemy to the conflict. These are brave men and true. Strong in the strength of good citizenship and unshamed character, they come into this armed with the justice of their cause. No half-hearted wavering is known to either. They are of a sturdy stuff which invites an antagonist to a fair fight on a level field.

They come to you as good citizens, as business men and as Democrats and ask your suffrage. Against them is arrayed an arm of the organized party which for thirty years has controlled our national Government, and which through every loyal and patriotic effort has kept the country in a condition of prosperity which has already won our people so much.

The history of the Republican party with its message to our liberties and its degradation of our agricultural interests is too well known to need repeating.

To assist this party in securing Democratic defeat there is here an organization terming itself the "popo's party," with much that is essentially Democratic coupled with much that is wholly communistic and unscrupulous. With its Free Trade plank it invites many an unthinking Democrat, who imagines he is in the hope of relief from the burdens for which the Republican party is wholly responsible, and by the promise of industrial reforms—not to say revolutions—it bids for the people's votes. With many of these men we must in many things agree. We must agree that the evils of which, they complain exist, and that they are chargeable alone to the party for which thirty years has raised up an aristocracy to often upon the fruits of honest toil. As to the remedy we may in some things differ, but this we do know, that the Republican party is for the existing order of things, and in the final account at the polls they must answer every indictment which a vigilant and long-suffering people have brought to their reckoning.

Our candidates and those who espouse their doctrine will meet the people and come to an honest, a full and fair valuation of the thing, and at a fair distance, he picks up a scroll of wrapping paper or fool's cap to write a letter on. Of course he has no nasty letter heads like the man who is doing a real business.

HARRISON AND REID. Benjamin Harrison, 555; A. B. Blaine, 182; William McKinley, 182; Robert Lincoln, 1; Thomas B. Reed, 1, was the result of the Republican scramble in Minneapolis Friday. Whitelaw Reid, editor of the New York Tribune, was unanimously chosen for second place on the ticket.

The battle was a keen one while it lasted, but the heart of the Democracy party was warmly turned toward Blaine, while there were 125,000 office-holders with the organized force of the whole Government service working to secure Harrison's renomination. Blaine had announced formerly that he did not want the nomination and during the short time he was actually a candidate there was poor opportunity to organize for him a winning force.

Whitelaw Reid is a great editor and a great man, but, handicapped with a platform of high taxes and a chief who favored the Force Bill and who is not a great man in any particular, he can but face from the outset obstacles which must prove insurmountable.

Despite his turning of the whole Government service to his personal support, Mr. Harrison will not again be elected President.

The Platform Already Fixed.

The platform of the party in power made up of its record in office. What it has done or attempted or has left undone, decides its principles and policy beyond the power of men to alter or change.

Whitelaw Reid's record of legislation and administration for the past three years and a quarter shows it to be fair to say.

War taxes in time of peace, million dollar expenditures.

A tariff for monopolies only. Bounties and subsidies to favored interests.

A Federal force law for elections. Standard coinage measure.

The protection of its railroads.

The division of the offices as spoils. Currency inflation with short-dollar notes.

A blustering diplomacy.

The taxing of foreigners only. Whatever fine-sounding sentiments the convention adopts, this is the real platform of the Republican party.

Actions speak louder than words.

WILL NOT ADJOURN.

The Weary Length to be Dragged Along Indefinitely—No New Districts, but Lots of Special Discussions.

OUR CORRESPONDENT ADJOURNS.

Special Correspondent of the HERALD. FRIDAY, JUNE 15, 1882.

As the weather gets warmer the prospects for a summer vacation for the Legislature grow smaller. As the session which opened on June 1st, was adjourned for a vacation the day after the election what in winter time would have been settled with a dagger, Blaine's bill was manifested that merit of this kind must be given to the public before it could be passed. The Legislature was not happy in his intercession with the former is not. When the Bering Sea and Newfoundland fisheries were opened to the world and thought to be always on the eve of going to war for a string of islands, the Legislature adjourned to strike a blow, was the soft answer of the State Department. That man of marvellous tact, of original temperament and of great personal qualities, was aided by his intercession with the British Minister of Foreign Affairs to get the session what in winter time would have been settled with a dagger, Blaine's bill was manifested that merit of this kind must be given to the public before it could be passed. SEEMLY SIMILE

Our Stock is Like a Stream:

Hundreds take from it, yet it never diminishes. This, of course, is because there is a never-dying spring of supply that feeds the stream.

Sluggish Streams Stagnate;

So sluggish stocks. They become decayed. They are not fit for commercial use any more than decayed meat. Finally they are known as "dead."

Constant Motion Keeps Water

In the best condition, and a constant flow of trade keeps a stock in the best condition. We have no dead stock, because our stock never stands still. It is always flowing out and flowing in.

No more naptropious day for an election could be imagined than was Saturday last, yet despite the busy season and anxiety of the part of the voters to get out and vote, posts on their farms, were pulled down between 750 and 1,000 votes at the Democratic primary. The races were not as close as it was to be remebered that in the last election, the part of anybody to stir up a large vote, it will be seen that less than half the Democratic voted at all.

After the election, the final struggle with the opposition comes on in November, the party will far more than double the vote polled on Saturday last.

The prohets have not yet been heard from, but only a small change in the relative standing of the candidates as given above, will result when the returns are completed.

The poll books will be compared to day, and a correct statement will be made next week.

ROUGH RIVER.

Its Condition and Prospects—Statutes of the Government Work
—An Official Report.

The following correspondence, concerning the condition of the river, is sent to many of our readers. Mr. John J. McElroy is in receipt of the following, which is explanatory:

EVANSVILLE, IND., May 21, 1892.

MY DEAR SIR:—Enclosed please find an extract from the report of the committee on Commerce of the U. S. Senate, concerning the river, which I have submitted with my letter in your papers at Hartford. I have no doubt your people will be interested in this extract, and to be assured that the Business Men's Association of Evansville is in securing all proper appropriations by Congress for the improvement of Green River and its tributaries.

Your representative in Congress is hopefully supported by our Congressmen in these efforts.

Nearly all the logs and lumber coming out of our section find a market in this city, and the development of your river is a great interest to us all and pleasure to our people.

If our Business Men's Association can in any way aid you in your efforts to get the attention of Congress and other sources of your part of Kentucky, it will take pleasure in doing so. With assurances of personal regard, I remain yours cordially,

J. W. WARTMANN, Secy.

The enclosure referred to reads as follows:

ROUGH RIVER (CREEK), KY.
The report of the Committee on Commerce of the U. S. Senate, now under consideration, which has had to do with Rough River, Kentucky: "The Rough River, formerly known as Rough Creek, is one of the principal tributaries of Green River and drains a large portion of the counties of Grayson and Owsley, in the State of Kentucky. It flows westward in an exceedingly tortuous course, and is about 30 miles in length, from its head to its mouth. It varies in width from 100 to 200 feet. The channel is slow low water and obstructed by bars and ripples. There are three mills downstream the stream, and a dam has been constructed by authority of the State. The first of them is at Hartford 38 miles from the mouth, and the last is 8 miles from the mouth. The river is navigable for small boats, and is used for fishing, boating, and for pleasure.

The point of the whole matter is intended to be that these four men, all possible Democratic standard-bearers, were once Republicans, and that this fact is a sufficient reflection upon the party.

The logic of the assumption is lame in both feet. It is surely to the credit of the party that it has raised a great and valiant army. Probably it was never equalled, and every body approves the payment of liberal pensions. But is there not an limit? What is the party to do when the Treasury is in twelve of the entire voting population North and West. We added to the pension list in a month of last year—twenty-five thousand men, and the total number of pensioners is now 355,445 men, which is 70,000 more than the total Union loss in killed, wounded and missing in the twelve great battles of the war. The cost of pensioning these men is now 100,000,000 dollars, or one-tenth of the Government in the year before the war. Peace in the United States is more expensive than the front of war abroad.

"The expense of handling these so great a distance and the high charges for transportation by rail have been a serious obstacle to the prosperity of that.

"During 1891 nearly 100,000 tons of logs and lumber were transported on this river, and a small steamboat carrying products and other merchandise was built at the mouth of the river.

"The act of 1890 having appropriated $25,000 to the improvement of the Rough River to be expended in the removal of obstructions from its mouth to Hartford, Ky., a project was formulated and approved by the Secretary of War October 27, 1890, which provides for the following works:

"First—To definitely locate the site of the proposed lock and purchase or have condemned the land needed about the site of the dam.

"Second—Clear the river of obstructions, to wit: Overhanging trees on the banks, snags, logs and stumps in the bed of the river. The estimate for this was $800 per acre or $80,000 for the entire area to be cleared in the month of the river and Hartford.

"It is thought that the land needed about the lock and purchase can be purchased for $100 per acre or $10,000.

"The amount of money expended during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1891, was $78,54, and resulted in the survey for the site of the lock, dam and preparing plans for the location of the dam and in the removal of obstructions from its mouth to Hartford, Ky., a project was formulated and approved by the Secretary of War October 27, 1890, which provides for the following works:
